

A gentle place to begin

You bought the books everyone recommends. You opened them with real hope. And within ten pages you felt stupid.

You are not stupid. Those books were written for students who already knew the sky. This one is written for everyone else.

Astrology, Gently teaches Vedic astrology as a language with a small grammar: nine planets, twelve signs, twelve houses, twenty-seven stars. Every rule comes with its reason. Every hard idea comes with a story from a royal court you will never forget. Every table is colour-coded. Lal Kitab is clearly labelled wherever it appears, so you always know which system you are in.

By the last page you will read a full chart, time the seasons of a life, answer the questions people actually ask about work, money, love, health and children, and sit across from someone with kindness and confidence. And if you never read for anyone but yourself and the people you love, you will still understand your own life a great deal better. That is the real reason this book was written.

Anushka Bharti is a practising astrologer who taught herself Jyotish after the classics failed her. This is her first book.
